Henlow Church of England Academy pupils celebrated European Day of Languages this week. Do you speak a second language? Do you think it's important? And do schools put enough emphasis on learning a foreign language?

Tony Goss I think more emphasis should be on spelling and proper use of ENGLISH before any foreign language.

Dave Thompson I have schoolboy French and some German learned in later life. I find that our Continental cousins are more amenable if you try speaking to them in their own language and not just talk louder in English!

Tony Hutchinson I also think that the English language is not used properly. Schools should concentrate on teaching the basics thoroughly before indulging in the whims of outdated government departments.
